Impacted Principal Owner first and last name:

Over the last several weeks, our company has worked closely with the U.S. Treasury and Small Business Administration (SBA) to process more than 305,000 Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) loan applications with the SBA, providing more than $25 billion in financial relief for small businesses in need.

We are writing to advise you that in preparation for submission of loan applications to the SBA, Bank of America (the Bank) uploaded some clients' loan applications to a limited access, controlled SBA test application platform. This platform was designed to allow authorized lenders to test the process for submitting PPP applications to the SBA prior to the actual submission process.

During testing, we discovered information included in your application may have been visible for a limited time period to a limited number of other lenders and their vendors authorized by the SBA to participate in the program. There is no indication that your information was viewed or misused by these lenders or their vendors. And your information was not visible to other business clients applying for loans, or to the public, at any time. This did not affect the actual submission of PPP loan applications to the SBA.

Below we provide more detailed information for you, and respond to questions you may have.

WHAT HAPPENED:

- Authorized lenders are required to submit loan applications to the SBA through the SBA's loan application platform.
- On April 22, the Bank uploaded some clients' loan application information to the SBA's test application platform, which authorized lenders and their vendors also use to test their loan submission processes.
- We quickly recognized other authorized lenders and their vendors may have had the ability to view the applicant information we uploaded.
- It is critical to note that there is no indication that any of the participating lenders or their vendors viewed or misused your information.
- The Bank requested and confirmed the removal of the information from the SBA's test website the same day.
- There was no impact to the submission of your loan application to the SBA.

WHAT INFORMATION WAS INVOLVED:

The information that may have been briefly visible to limited authorized lenders and their vendors included business contact and business information about the company of which you are a principal owner, such as business address and tax identification number (TIN). As a principal owner, personal information about you, such as your name, address, Social Security Number, phone number, email address and citizenship may have been involved.

- Report lost or stolen checks, credit or debit cards immediately.
- Never provide personal information over the phone or online unless you have initiated the call and know with whom you are speaking.
