

NOTICE OF DATA BREACH

Dear student,

BYU-Pathway Worldwide, a Utah nonprofit corporation, recently detected unauthorized network access that may have included your personal data. At this time, there is no evidence that your personal information has been used for fraudulent or other harmful purposes. We are notifying you and others whose data may have been affected, even where this is not legally required.

What happened?

The BYU-Pathway information security team became aware of a potential security incident that occurred on or about 17 June 2025 involving a vendor's account. On 24 June 2025, after we became aware of the unauthorized access, we removed the vendor's access to any personal information. We then notified federal law enforcement authorities in the United States and engaged cybersecurity experts. Upon investigation, evidence indicated the vendor's account was compromised by an unknown third party, which allowed unauthorized access to certain systems.

Who committed this intrusion?

BYU-Pathway cannot determine the identity of the unauthorized person who may have accessed or acquired your personal data. The forensic investigators who assisted BYU-Pathway in investigating the security breach have not detected any further unauthorized access or activity since 24 June 2025.

What information was affected?

The personal information accessed may have included your name; Social Security number (if you provided it); your account ID (but not password); contact information, such as address and phone number; gender and marital status; religious affiliation (if you provided it); age; and records of your educational courses. If you are a current student, you can log in to your online BYU-Pathway account at any time and view student data that may have been affected.

What are we doing?

Upon discovery of the incident, we immediately initiated our incident response procedures and are actively working with external cybersecurity experts, federal law enforcement authorities, our legal team, and other leading cybersecurity professionals to investigate the incident and further enhance the security of BYU-Pathway's data and IT systems, including vendor access. This incident has been reviewed with staff, and security measures have been reemphasized to protect against similar breaches in the future. We also have notified state attorneys general, credit reporting agencies, or other regulatory authorities where legally required. If you are receiving this notice, as a precaution we are offering complimentary credit monitoring to further protect your identity. To request this service, please contact the toll-free number listed below and provide code [REDACTED]. You will then be provided with instructions to set up credit monitoring.

What can you do?

We have no indication at this time that your personal data has been misused or published. We recommend that you remain vigilant about the security of your personal data by monitoring your personal accounts, frequently changing passwords, selecting strong and different passwords for every account, and acting on any suspicious activity. You should promptly report to your local law enforcement authorities any fraudulent activity, scam, or identity theft. In addition, you can request a credit freeze or fraud alerts associated with your personal information for free by contacting one of the major credit bureaus. By law, they are required to share that request with the other major credit bureaus.
