Dear First Name Last Name:

Notice of Data Breach

Your privacy is important to State Farm®, which is why we are writing to let you know about a data security incident that may involve your personal information.

What Happened

On December 30, 2016, State Farm became aware of an incident involving a former State Farm employee who appeared to have transferred files to a portable electronic storage device and through subsequent efforts, learned that the files contained consumer information. Since its discovery of the incident, State Farm has worked diligently to understand the nature of the incident as well as the scope of the information potentially implicated. At this time, we have no reason to suspect that your personal information has been misused. The State Farm employee who transferred the information is no longer working with the company, but has informed State Farm that the transfer was made at the time for work reasons and that all such information has been returned to State Farm. Nevertheless, because State Farm has not been able to independently verify this information, we are providing notice out of an abundance of caution.

What Information Was Involved

In general, the data relates to prior or ongoing litigation or matters of a similar nature. The information varies from file to file and may include information related to insurance claims, as well as information collected during investigation and discovery in the claim or case. Such information may include information related to claims such as your name along with one or more of these data elements: contact information, date of birth, social security number, driver's license number, financial account information, health or medical information, or publicly available information relating to the claim and/or lawsuit.

What We Are Doing

The individual involved no longer works for the company. State Farm continues to monitor and/or block the transfer of information to electronic storage devices.

If you do find suspicious activity on your accounts, call your local police or state Attorney General’s office to file a report. You have a right to obtain a police report if you are a victim of identity theft. Information about identity theft, fraud alerts, and security freezes can be obtained from the sources listed below.
- You are entitled to receive a free credit report from each of the three credit reporting agencies below every 12 months, and you may ask for a fraud alert on your credit report. A fraud alert tells creditors to contact you before any credit is issued or changes to your accounts are made, and generally stays in place for 90 days.
