Dear [First_Name] [Last_Name],

[Date]

The privacy of individual personal data is important to Exelixis. As a result, we are writing to inform you that on July 30, 2013, we learned of a theft of company equipment that contained such data. Following an investigation, we have determined that the data may have included your name, address, birth date, financial account number, and social security number.

Circumstances suggest that the motivation behind the theft was to obtain goods such as electronic equipment, not information. We have not received any reports of actual access to or misuse of the data on the stolen equipment. A police report was filed, and we are continuing to investigate the incident and consider courses of action that will reduce the risk of theft and disclosure of such information in the future. We will also be informing the credit reporting agencies so that they may take any appropriate action.

Even though to date we have not received any reports of actual access to or misuse of information, we recommend that you monitor your financial accounts and credit reports for fraudulent transactions and consider contacting the credit reporting agencies if you wish to put in place a fraud alert or obtain a free copy of your credit report. If you see anything you do not recognize or understand, call the credit agency's number listed on the report. Examples of suspicious activity include accounts you did not open, inquiries from creditors you did not initiate or an inaccurate home address or social security number. Contact information for the credit reporting agencies is below should you have questions about fraud alerts or need help reading your credit report.

Equifax: 1-800-525-6285; www.equifax.com; P.O. Box 740241, Atlanta, GA 30374-0241

Experian: 1-888-EXPERIAN (397-3742); www.experian.com; P.O. Box 9532, Allen, TX 75013

TransUnion: 1-800-680-7289; www.transunion.com; Fraud Victim Assistance Division, P.O. Box 6790, Fullerton, CA 92834-6790

A fraud alert on your credit report does not affect your ability to get a loan or credit. Instead, it alerts a business that your personal information may have been compromised and requires them to verify your identity before issuing you credit. As part of this verification process, the business may try to contact you directly. While this may cause some short delay if you are the one applying for the credit, it ensures that someone cannot fraudulently obtain credit in your name.

As you monitor your transaction records and credit reports, if you suspect fraudulent transactions have occurred, contact your local law enforcement agency or the attorney general of your state. In addition, the Federal Trade Commission web site at www.consumer.gov/idtheft contains information and tips to help individuals guard against identity theft.
