ATTORNEY GENERAL COPY
CONTAINS OFFICIAL
INFORMATION PURSUANT TO EVIDENCE CODE §1040

Greetings:

This office and the Mateel Environmental Justice Foundation ("Mateel") give you notice that Pacific Gas & Electric Company ("PG&E") has been, is, will be and threatens to be in violation of Cal. Health & Safety Code §§ 25249.5 and 25249.6. Both this office and Mateel are private enforcers of Proposition 65, both may be contacted at the below-listed address and telephone number, and I am a responsible individual at both Mateel and this office. The above referenced violations occur when residents of California (as well as visitors to California, collectively, hereinafter "Californians") are exposed to chemicals used to treat wooden utility poles. These chemicals are: pentachlorophenol, hexachlorobenzene, polychlorinated dibenzo-p-dioxins, polychlorinated dibenzofurans, hexachloro dibenzo-p-dioxin, and 2,3,7,8 tetrachloro dibenzo-p-dioxin (collectively hereinafter "wood treatment chemicals").

This notice pertains to every wooden utility pole that PG&E owns, operates, stores and/or maintains in the State of California and for which pentachlorophenol is an active ingredient in the mixture of chemicals used to treat these poles. This notice also pertains to such poles to the extent that PG&E has taken them out of service and then sold or donated them to be used for things such as parking facilities and landscaping (to the limited extent PG&E's poles are sold or donated, they are consumer products). The poles at issue are the ubiquitous "telephone poles" that line public thoroughfares, cross farm fields, and are installed on public property and in the yards of private citizens. These poles are a component of PG&E's electricity distribution (as opposed to transmission) network.

Most Californians think these poles cannot be a serious threat to public health because the poles are so ubiquitous and – these Californians believe – their state and federal governments would not allow such a ubiquitous and serious threat to public health to be placed – literally – in their back yards. These Californians are mistaken.

Wood treatment chemicals are dissolved into various hydrocarbons such as oil, creosote and/or methylene chloride and are then forced under pressure into the wooden poles. These chemicals then ooze out of the poles. Wood treatment chemicals are on the surface of the poles, they are washed off the poles when rain falls on the poles, and they ooze out of the poles and drip or ooze into soil at the base of the poles.

Mateel has measured all of these chemicals – including the extremely potent endocrine disruptors such as dioxin – at hair-raising levels in water dripping off poles, in water that has run off the poles and over the curb, in creeks immediately downstream from the poles, and in soil at the base of the poles. These chemicals are extremely long-lived. Their half-lives in the human body can be as long as eleven years. PG&E's wood treatment chemicals concentrate in fatty tissues and bio-magnify as they move up the food chain. The amount of these chemicals resident in an animal's body is commonly referred to as that animal's body burden of the chemical.

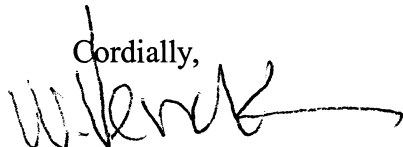

Californians are exposed to these chemicals when they touch the poles and when they touch paper that has been affixed to the poles and then has absorbed the chemicals from the poles. These chemicals are then absorbed through the skin and are ingested through hand-to-mouth behavior such as eating a sandwich or biting of finger nails. Californians are exposed to PG&E's wood treatment chemicals when they come into contact with slivers and splinters from PG&E's poles. These slivers and splinters pierce Californians' skin and deliver a subcutaneous dose of PG&E's wood treatment chemicals. Californians are exposed to PG&E's wood treatment chemicals, when they step in soil or water impregnated with the chemicals and then track these chemicals into their houses and rugs and then touch or ingest the chemicals. Californians breath dust impregnated with PG&E's wood treatment chemicals during summer months when the wind blows this dust into the atmosphere. They ingest the dust when it falls on their food, such as tomatoes grown in gardens. Californians eat fish caught from water bodies into which PG&E's wood treatment chemicals flow and thus ingest these chemicals which have moved up the food chain into the flesh of fish and shellfish. Californians are exposed to PG&E's wood treatment chemicals when they consume animal fat -- such as milk, cheese, ice cream, and beef – from animals that ingested PG&E's wood treatment chemicals and then concentrated those chemicals in their fat tissues. Children are exposed to PG&E's wood treatment chemicals when they eat dirt that has become contaminated with the chemicals and when they ingest breast milk from their mothers who were exposed to PG&E's wood treatment chemicals in the ways discussed above, and who then have concentrated these chemicals into the breast milk they use to feed their infants. PG&E is poisoning breast milk throughout California. These chemicals cross the placenta and thus expose people when they are fetuses. These exposures thus occur via the ingestion, percutaneous absorption, inhalation, mucous membrane, sub-cutaneous, body-burden and trans-placenta routes.

These chemicals cause cancer, birth defects, endometriosis, and reduced sperm counts. For those exposed in utero during certain "windows" of fetal development, PG&E's wood treatment chemicals cause life-long behavioral changes such as inability to deal with stress and inability to concentrate. In utero exposure to PG&E's wood treatment chemicals causes boy children to be born with cleft penises and children of both sexes to develop club feet. PG&E does not provide a clear and reasonable warning to any of the people it is exposing to its wood treatment chemicals.

These violations have occurred every day since at least July 29, 2007 and will continue every day until PG&E provides warnings to those exposed. Exposures constituting Proposition 65 environmental exposure violations occur both on and off the company's property and in each of the counties, the district attorneys for which are listed on the attached service list. The above-referenced violations are alleged for occupational exposures as well as for consumer and environmental exposures. We do not, however, allege occupational exposure violations except as to workplaces that PG&E itself maintains in California.

Cordially,

William Verick

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT

I, William Verick, hereby declare: This Certificate of Merit accompanies the attached notice(s) of violation in which it is alleged the parties identified in the notices have violated Health and Safety Code section 25249.6 by failing to provide clear and reasonable warnings. I am the attorney for the noticing party. I have consulted with one or more persons with relevant and appropriate experience or expertise who has reviewed facts, studies, or other data regarding the exposure to the listed chemical that is the subject of the action. Based on the information obtained through those consultations, and on all other information in my possession, I believe there is a reasonable and meritorious case for the private action. I understand that "reasonable and meritorious case for the private action" means that the information provides a credible basis that all elements of the plaintiffs' case can be established and the information did not prove that the alleged violator will be able to establish any of the affirmative defenses set forth in the statute. The copy of this Certificate of Merit served on the Attorney General attaches to it factual information sufficient to establish the basis for this certificate, including the information identified in Health and Safety Code section 25249.7(h)(2), i.e., (1) the identity of the person(s) consulted with and relied on by the certifier, and (2) the facts, studies, or other data reviewed by those persons.

Dated: March 5, 2015

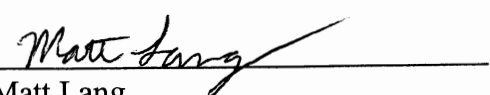

William Verick

This notice alleges the violation of Proposition 65 with respect to occupational exposures governed by the California State Plan for Occupational Safety and Health. The State Plan incorporates the provisions of Proposition 65, as approved by Federal OSHA on June 6, 1997. This approval specifically placed certain conditions on Proposition 65, including that it does not apply to the conduct of manufacturers occurring outside the State of California. The approval also provides that an employer may use the means of compliances in the general hazard communication requirements to comply with Proposition 65. It also requires that supplemental enforcement is subject to the supervision of the California Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Accordingly, any settlement, civil complaint, or substantive court orders in this matter must be submitted to the Attorney General.

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I, Matt Lang, declare:

If called, I could and would testify as follows: I am over eighteen. My business address is 424 First Street, Eureka, California, 95501. On March 5, 2015, I caused the attached NOTICE OF VIOLATION LETTER, or a letter identical in substance, to be served by U.S. Mail on those public enforcement agencies listed on the attached SERVICE LIST; in addition on the same date and by U.S. Mail I caused the attached NOTICE OF VIOLATION and PROPOSITION 65: A SUMMARY to be sent by Certified U.S. Mail to the private business entities also listed on the attached SERVICE LIST. I deposited copies of these documents in envelopes, postage pre-paid, with the U.S. Postal Service on the day on which the mail is collected. I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct and that this declaration was executed on March 5, 2015, at Eureka, California.
